this book on the structure and role of time in physical theories addresses itself to scientists and philosophers interested in the no man's land between science and philosophy in particular between physics and philosophy the point of departure is physical time like time as used by physicists in their theories but the analysis is not confined to a purely physical level but carries the problem into the domain of philosophical inquiry although the book presupposes some knowledge of physics I have avoided wherever possible the use of advanced mathematics and technical details of all the people who have been of help in writing this book I would first of all like to mention Paul Scheurer and Guy Debrock who were my primary mentors in science and philosophy this strictly is a revision of my dissertation Kroe's 1982a which I wrote under the stimulating guidance of Scheurer many of the ideas exposed here have their origin in his work and were developed in frequent discussions with him Guy Debrock not only stimulated my interest in philosophy but also made valuable suggestions without any overstatement I dare say that without their assistance this book would never have been written furthermore I would like to thank Dieks J J C
